1. When we first studied the high performing IT organizations, we noticed something unusual. The backgrounds of the people leading them typically came from one of three backgrounds. They were either a non-commissioned officer in the military (usually E-5s or E-6s), they were chemical engineers, or they were auditors.

I would highly recommend starting with the Visible Ops handbook if you find that you do not have control over the 4 phases described in that book. Working some of the deliverables discussed in the DevOps handbook in parallel could be an option but I would, and have, focused on the 4 phases and have moved onto some of the ideas presented in the DevOps handbook.
